

BBC Complaints to the BBC: October 2016

The BBC answered just over 14,700 complaints from the audience during October 2016. These ranged from a small number of complaints about alleged breaches of editorial guidelines through to a much larger collection of views about programme content and services.

Topics raised this month included complaints from viewers of Strictly Come Dancing on 2 October who were unhappy a contestant was able to progress in the competition despite not taking part in the dance off due to an injury.

The BBC's responses to some recent issues can be read on the BBC Complaints website.
