

Coverage

This summer work begins to increase the coverage from the BBC's national digital radio transmitter network from 65% of the UK population to 85% by 2004.

New areas covered include parts of Scotland, the South and South East, East Anglia, Central England, the North, and the West and South West.

The map below shows current coverage and predicted coverage.

BBC Digital Radio Expansion in the UK, 2003-2004 Predicted Coverage

Radio listeners can find out if digital radio is available in their area by going to www.bbc.co.uk/digitalradio.